

Alternatively, the assembly may be provided for automatically reversing of the carriage and actuator without changing the direction of rotation of the shaft. This may be achieved by reversing the angle of inclination of the bearings relative to the shaft, i.e. the positioning of the bearings with respect to the shaft is altered to its corresponding mirror image.